

We have written to all former Ministers for confirmation that the information in the table is complete. Mr Simpson, has not responded and therefore the Scottish Executive cannot guarantee the accuracy of the entries related to the period when he was a Minister.

Under the Scottish Ministerial Code, Ministers should report the receipt of all gifts to the Permanent Secretary. It is a matter for individual Ministers what they choose to do with gifts they have received under the value of £140. In general, gifts of a higher value become the property of the Scottish Executive who then decide on the most appropriate action for them, such as being used or displayed in a property used by the Executive. However, the recipient may, if they wish, purchase the gift at its cash value (abated by £140).

In the table enclosed we have, where the value of the gift exceeds £140, indicated the actual value and whether the Minister has purchased the gift by paying the balance. Where we have been advised that the Minister does not wish to purchase the gift it has remained the property of the Scottish Executive and is noted as “retained by SE”.
