Glasgow 2014 - Delivering a Lasting Legacy for Scotland

Question 1: QUESTION 1: Are the benefits you would like from the games covered in this paper?

We are please that the Athlete's village and new venues will set exacting standards, for example, for carbon emissions, waste and sustainable food.

We would like these strengthened by a holistic evaluation of how this will contribute to the sustainability of the environment and the long

Question 3: QUESTION 3: How can we, individually or collectively, best achieve these aims?	A consultation on the design of the village so it is a showcase for Scottish architecture. It should provide an example of how new build and the surrounding cultivated areas and greenspace can be designed to help people adapt to climate change but still have a good quality of life. Engage the planners, developers, biodiversity specialists, horticulturalists and amateur gardeners in a collaborative exercise to draw up guidelines for the site with the ongoing use after the Games are finished. Ensure the designs and implementation are disseminated at all stages as part of an on-going dialogue on development and regeneration for sustainability and adaptation to climate change.
Question 4: QUESTION 4: Do you have any other comments to offer on what should feature in the final games benefits and legacy plan?	If the Athletes Village is a success incorporating a long term vision of eco-build and eco-cultivation, the implementation will benefit the Scottish economy as well as the quality of life of the people. This is a wonderful opportunity to show Scotland's approach to living and adapting to climate change. The economic, environmental and social benefits of this development should be a core part of the games legacy and benefits plan.
