11. If you believe that domestic advertising and promotion should be regulated, what, if any, exemptions should apply?

Comments We believe that any form of advertising in relation to normalising smoking is not helpful in reducing the impact and harm across all smoker groups. However, the consultation document provides an 'option 3' which allows for the use of domestic advertising and promotion by exception. We are conscious that such exceptions could be required in the future should e-cigarettes become regulated and utilised as an accepted form of NRT or in general the product is seen as a 'better' alternative to tobacco in which case the public will require advice and information through a variety of reliable and trusted media relating to e-cigarettes. Thought needs to be given to ensure future strategy/policy regarding e-cigarettes and their potential role in supporting the smoke cessation agenda is not inhibited by domestic regulations.
